

Amateur Radio Licence Practical Assessment

All applicants for an Australian amateur radio licence must undertake the practical assessment once to hold a licence. No matter what level licence you undertake as your first licence, you need to complete the practical assessment to be granted your licence.

Examination contains 15 Sections and is currently set by the Australian Media and Communications Authority (ACMA) and ACMA charge a fee for examinations.

The score the candidate must achieve for the practical assessment is 100%.

Our radio club, "The Wyndham Amateur Radio Club (WARC)" provides this online training and any tuition freely.